Re: Reflections in Restoration Publication

Dear Sir/Madam:

We are excited to inform you of our new Canadian trade magazine, Reflections in Restoration, published by Aquila Publishing on behalf of the Society for Ecological Restoration, British Columbia Chapter (SER-BC). The first edition will focus on ecological restoration in British Columbia; however, our goal is to make this a bi-yearly national magazine.

The magazine will encompass a very wide spectrum of topics in the field of ecological restoration from a variety of sources such as practitioners, students and artists. The magazine will give those who otherwise might not be able to publish their material, a chance to publish their projects, relay information on their services, or share knowledge on a topic relevant to the field of ecological restoration. It will be a magazine that is limited only by our imaginations!

Tracy Patterson, owner/publisher of Aquila Publishing, has a background in restoration/reclamation, and her primary focus is the publication of magazines in these fields.

Reflections in Restoration will not be funded by SER-BC, but will depend on advertising from the ecological restoration community. The magazine will be free of charge to those receiving it, and the audience will grow over time as the magazine evolves. This will be an excellent place to advertise as the readership for this magazine will be the ecological restoration community, ultimately across Canada.

SER-BC hopes that the magazine will gain the support of the ecological restoration community in Canada, and beyond, and we welcome editorial, suggestions and general comments as we proceed down this new and exciting path.

Sincerely,

Dave Polster, B.Sc., M.Sc., R.P.Bio.
Treasurer, SER-BC
